

COVID-19

POSITIVE TEST? WHAT HAPPENS NEXT?

-You will be notified of laboratory results by your Primary Care Provider.

-Craig Public Health Nursing will call and interview you about your symptoms, onset of symptoms, and medical history. You will be asked to provide information on where you have been and who you have been in contact with. Starting from two days prior to onset of symptoms until now. You will receive patient instructions and education, including how to seek emergency care if required.

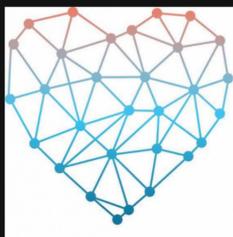

-Craig Public Health determines if your contacts are considered close contacts or general population risk. All contacts are notified and provided instructions and education. Your name will not be shared with your contacts unless you give permission to tell them.

- A nurse from Craig Public Health will contact you daily. You will be asked to monitor your symptoms and take your temperature twice per day.

-You will be cleared to leave home isolation 7 days from the onset of symptoms AND when your symptoms are better with no fever for at least 3 days. This determination is given by Craig Public Health on a case-by-case basis.

-COVID-19 is a reportable disease. Craig Public Health will share information about your course of illness with the State of Alaska Section of Epidemiology and with the United States Centers for Disease Control.
